“ To the family of Margo Hanner. I'm am very sorry for your loss. I did not know her personally, but we all became Facebook friends because of our devotion to the famous Decorah, Iowa Eagle nest. In my busy life, I somehow missed her passing. On January 4, 2004, Margo posted a story telling us that she was selective about the people and family she accepted into her life, she had 34 friends, I received a "memory notice" from Facebook, dated January 4, 2014. It was a post inquiring who her true friends were. The test was to read the entire post and enter a word in the comment box stating how you met. I completed the task and we remained virtual friends. I enjoyed her family pictures and her precious dogs. I can only imagine what a loyal person she was to her "actual" family and friends. I feel, if she accepted you as a friend, she was a true, loyal, dedicated friend for life. In the world of social media, you can't be certain if the one you choose to friend is truly an honest person. Margo was certainly a true, honest, devoted friend to the select few she choose to grace with her friendship. May she watch over us and be free from mortal weakness and suffering. Although, we were only virtual friends for a short time, she touched my life in a special way. I am very sorry for your loss, she was a special person.
