“ Five years have passed and I still miss you. so many things have happened, so many things have changed. How I long for the days I could pour my heart and feelings out to you and you always gave me correct advice and always made my heart feel better. Please hold my husband in your arms for me and whisper in his ear all my feelings. I love you and miss you !!

“ My grandmother was a very strong lady who loved us all very much. Grandma was the original single mother before it became common place in many american families. I too was a sinle mother and as I look back on raising my children I realize how much I learned from her. She taught me to prepare for rainy day and to always be there for my family. Her love of family and food has been passed on to me and my family. Adam has taken her love of food and made it a career. I am sure she is proud of how good his Italian food is. Neil always remembers how she never forgot about him even though we lived far away. I always told him how much she loves us all. We will miss Grandma Mary thats what me and my brothers called hervery much. Her strengths and love of family will be with us forever.

“ We will miss her greatly. My Grandmaither was a big part of my life, she was there for many years when I really needed someone to talk to, she always had good advise and never told me I could not do the things I thought I could. She was not very happy when I went into the military, but I know she was proud that I made a decision and made it a success. Throughout my life I have always told stories about living with gramma-mary the grandmother with the Mary, not the one with the grandpa, that was my mothers mother, my cousins all called her gramm-Annie! Kim, Nathan, Bill, and I will be togehter this weekend to talk about, and remember the times we had with her. Our love to the family, and God bless gramma-Mary.
