“ I worked with Darlene and I have fond memories of her. She had quick wit and wisdom to share. I would always tease her because she would come to work and call her husband on the phone. She would always have this beautiful smile on her face as she talked to him. And I would say he still makes you smile after all this time and she would say "you better believe it". That's true love. That is everlasting love and devotion. You will be missed.
