“ Dave was more than my brother-in-law. He’s watched Mark and I grow up since we were kids and has always been a role model that we could both look up to. He was a best friend, someone I could rely on, and always made me laugh whenever we were together. I will carry him in my heart everyday and treasure all of the memories I was lucky to have made with him. I’ll miss hearing his motorcycle driving up the street to our house and will miss his presence at every holiday, birthday, and get-together. To Dave - I love you, and we will always be there for Tammy, Jess, and Shawn.

“ The 38 years I spent with my dad were truly a blessing, packed with moments of laughter, learning and adventure. His intelligence and resourcefulness made him a master problem solver, capable of fixing anything. One of the most valuable lessons he taught me was the importance of balance in life, showing me that hard work and play were not mutually exclusive. By teaching me basic car maintenance, he gave me the confidence to be self-sufficient. His love and support were my anchor during difficult times, and the memories we created together are too numerous to count. From our camping trips and the trip to Maine, to our bike rides, he showed me what it means to live life to the fullest.

As a grandfather, he set a high moral standard for my boys, teaching them valuable life lessons through his example. The boys and I consistently created lasting memories with my dad (grandpa) including bike rides, motorcycle rides, camping, paddleboarding, and backyard fires. His untimely departure feels unfair, yet I am deeply thankful to have had him as my dad.

I'll love you always, Dad.

Thank you for setting the best example for my boys, they looked up to you, and I hope they follow in your footsteps.

“Dave was more than a big brother to me; he was a best friend, mentor, and a source of treasured memories. From motorcycle rides and off-roading adventures to camping, card games, and family gatherings, every moment with him was special. His playful teasing, like questioning my lack of tools, was always paired with the comforting reminder, “Your big brother is here.” He was a dependable and wise presence, offering help when it mattered most. He loved our kids and had created a special bond with them. His loss feels unimaginable for all of us, but I will cherish our shared memories and honor his legacy while deeply missing him. Your little brother, Mark.

“ My Uncle Dave was an amazing man. He always had a huge grin on his face and had the whole room laughing. I remember when I was 16 and had been parked in my friends driveway in my car. I left it running too long and my battery died. Luckily, my parents had been hanging out with Uncle Dave and Aunt Tammy that night. They drove over and Uncle Dave helped to start my car. He was always the most prepared person, having anything and everything you could need in a situation. Another time I rode on my dad’s motorcycle with Uncle Dave to PA to get riding passes for an upcoming trip in the mountains with our side-by-sides. My dad decided to tempt fate and we ended up running out of gas just off an exit on the freeway. Uncle Dave drove to the nearest gas station and got a police officer to drive us back some gasoline. Of course he was laughing at my dad the entire time. When we went riding in the side-by-sides, I would ride with him and he would pull the craziest moves to try to make me hold on since I never did with my dad. Needless to say he always had me gripping the handle bars with how fast he would drive through the trails. I’m so incredibly lucky to have had my Uncle Dave growing up. I have so many fond memories to look back upon and he will be missed so dearly. Sending love to Tammy, Jess, Shawn, and family.

“ I remember riding our sleds in a horrific snowstorm to PA. We needed gas and Dave said not to worry, we would ride into the next town for some. Signs were posted no snowmobile's but Dave was convinced we would be ok. I wasn't as confident however and was sure we would get in trouble with the cops. we got into a mini tiff over whether to continue or not 😭. Of course he won, we got gas and no arrests were made! One of the many good times and laughs we have had over the years. Dave, thanks for the memories 🍷
