“ Mom, I miss you more than life. You were the sweetest most dedicated mother I know. Not only to us, but to my friends who needed one as well. Your nature was so loving and considerate. I aspire to be as loving and nurturing as you were, to my own children. Thank you for the countless times you had my back when no one did. For accepting me and all my baggage. I wish I came in sooner mom. I wish I would've just checked on you a few minutes earlier.. I will never forget schooling you in board games and making you laugh until you nearly wet yourself. “ERYKAH STOP I CANT BREATHE WHEN I LAUGH” lol. I can't count how many times we had to separate ourselves in different parts of the house or couldn't make eye contact because the laughter would never end. You are my best friend mom. We never went more than a few hours without texting or talking. The hardest part is not being able to sit in bed and vent to you about all of this. We were the best partners in crime known to man. I'm so happy you are finally at peace and dancing with the Lord. We will be okay. I will never stop missing you and wishing I could hug you one more time. I picked a piece of your hair off my shirt this morning and I just lost it. I love you & I am truly lost without you.
