“ When I was in elementary school, I had to create an invention as a project. My idea was for an alarm that would go off when someone opened the door to which it was attached. Uncle Johnny soldered the circuit board for me, and I remember thinking it was so cool that he knew how to do that. This weekend, Holly and I soldered pipes in our basement and it reminded me of that project. I'm not sure it would meet his standards, but I hope Uncle Johnny saw our work!
