“ Kyle was 6 when I met him. His older sister was my childhood best friend. When I started coming around, he'd hide at first then slowly peek out with a shy silly grin.

Over time, he warmed up to me. I cherish memories of the many middle school weekends spent in their home and with their family.

Kyle was sweet, funny, sensitive, and good natured. He liked to be included and he liked to make us laugh. His loss is a tragedy for his family and community. My deepest condolences.

“ Kyle would always stop by my family's restaurant and the store I managed in the same plaza. I was going through the police academy when we met and he gave me nothing, but support and kindness. We would chat about how excited he was to collect new hot wheels and marry his fiancé. My condolences go to his family and loved ones. He will be missed by his community.
