“ You know how our older relatives talk about "good people?" Well, "Triage" was "good people"... Find me a man who can triage out eight calls in a row, go to four hours of CE, and still find a way to make other people smile?!?!

Anyway, I found a cool poem for our buddy... it's called Mere Mortals

* *

*Busy doing something else,
and then a phone call out of the blue,
a day left in shattered pieces,
as all my thoughts turn to you.*

*I'm glad that you didn't suffer long,
that's some consolation I suppose,
and if you could have chosen the path to exit,
I think that's the way you would have chose.*

* *

*You had an honesty which was refreshing,
and a love of the simple things in life,
a boat, a beer, a paper, a snooze.
A kiss on the cheek, from the other guy's wife.*

*Now you've left a gap that's hard to fill,
and forever, there'll be an empty space,
and we'll have to pass our time just wondering,
while you've already moved onto that other place.*

* *

*And life is what happens while you're making other plans, and we all get too busy, forget what matters the most,
but I'm glad that you were a friend of mine,
that is something I will always proudly boast.*

* *

*And I'm sorry we hadn't spoke in a while,
now, we'll have to leave that talk for another day,
just know that I'm proud to have known you,*

and immortally, that's the way it will always stay.

“ I worked with Mark for a short time at Progressive. He was a great person to be around. His smile will be greatly missed here in Mentor. My thoughts and prayers are with his family and friends through this hard time.
