His mother named him Richard. In later years he was called Bud. Or Dad. Or Grandpa. And ultimately Mr. Bud, an appellation of endearment and respect, used by the woman he treasured and adored, his beloved Carole E. Burress, my beautiful sister, and her extended family and their wide circle of friends.

Blessed with an agile, seeking mind and teasing wit, Mr. Bud could be counted on to test and vex, never with malice, those he kept close to his heart. Brain-teasers were quests to him, and quests were challenges he embraced. He hoarded them as he did every tool and spare part that found its way into his ownership.

A private man, Bud chose those in whom he confided as selectively as he did what he revealed about himself and his life. Often a mystery and sometimes a comic, Mr. Bud kept those of us lucky enough to be in his acquaintance on our toes, amazing us with odd bits of knowledge he had stashed away.

He brought joy and companionship, love and comfort to my sister and in doing so made himself a beloved member of our family.

I will miss his presence and influence enormously. How blessed I am that through Carole our lives were joined.

“ Although our Mr. Bud was not bound to our family by blood or paperwork he was attached to our hearts. He was part of our family before our own children. He will be greatly missed by all of us. I thank him for being a part of our lives.
We love ya Mr. Bud.
