“ I didn't know about this until this last summer 2014 since I moved out of town the year I graduated 2002. The English language, unfortunately, lacks the words to sufficiently describe such a loss. At best, we can acknowledge the good that is lost to us, and hope to live by it's example the best we can.

“ Ricky,
We've watched you grow over the years, from a young boy, to a young man, to the true definition of a man. Your strength and courage in the face of your illness are an inspiration to us all. The kindness and compassion you shared with so many throughout your life, as testified to by the gathering today, is the real measure of the Man you are. Your beliefs and convictions solely yours and you took ownership for them and defended them as an intelligent and dignified man. The love and relationships you held so dear, a deep and showing reflection of you, your parents, and your entire family. It's been an honor knowing you and your family, rest assured your love for them will continue through all the people you and they have touched in this world. We will miss you deeply and keep you in our hearts.

“ I never personally met Ricky, but I am a really good friend of Kory and I will be here for him if he needs me. I don't usually pray but I said a few prayers last night for the Rhodes family and for Ricky.

*my best wishes are with your family.

“ It's hard to completely say how I feel, Me and Ricky never hung out as often as we did a couple years ago, and now I wish we did. He was truly a good friend that never let his disabilities get him down. May God give his family strength, and thank Him for letting Ricky go peacefully.

“ I was a friend of Ricky's for years. Brad Foster, Jeff Lenz, PJ, all of us would hang out. I can't express how much I will miss you Ricky.

I moved to California two years ago, and have only been able to see Ricky once since then. I was going to be in Ohio next month to see my family, and was hoping to see him while I was there. If someone could please email me with his parents address, I would like to send something to them.
