“ Dear Rosie There were so many things I wanted to say last night but my thoughts were scattered and I was fighting back tears. You were so many things to so many people. The love for you in the room was overwhelming. In my early years, I thought of you as my sister since we we so close in age. I felt we had a bond since we were both trying to master the American Educational system with English as a second language. You were so confident and tenacious in you life. You always knew where you wanted to go and how to get there. Some of my most precious memories are when we all gathered at Baka's and Deda's and you and I went out to pick up something from the store. It was just the two of us talking about current events. You always had strong opinions and I admired you for that. I often hoped Baka would run out of an ingredient so we could go to the store again. You were so loving and loyal to your family. You took care of your parents with such compassion but yet you were the rock for your sisters and brothers. You were the one we could all count on to be the voice of reason. You were always there for us, through all the graduations, showers, weddings, and our children's milestones. We knew we could count on you. I did not need an RSVP from you I knew you would be there. As the cousins gathered we all talked about how you made us feel special. Even though you never had children of your own, I am confident that at some point in all of our lives you were our MOM. You will be deeply missed. Love Your niece Renata
